COMMUNITY SPOTLIGHT

Sandilands

Sandilands was settled in the early 1900's by Metis, Ukrainians, and French. Settlers made their living by cutting pulp in the bush, raising cattle, working on the railway, and picking berries to sell in Winnipeg. There was even a sawmill in the 1920's that employed locals. Due to the remote location, they transported goods such as berries, mushrooms, and wood into the city via train. Sandilands was so remote, they only got hydro in 1955. However, the town boasted of five stores – from groceries to hardware – a school, and a post office that serviced both the town of Bedford and Sandilands. At its peak, the school held 56 children and one teacher until it was consolidated in 1966. The town of Bedford, located northwest of Sandilands, had a hotel, stores, and a bush camp that employed locals and grew mushrooms to sell in Winnipeg. It slowly died out, and it's residents went to Sandilands for their needs.

Today, Sandilands is known for its quiet atmosphere. Both year-round and seasonal residents enjoy berry picking, ATV trails, horseback riding, camping, and skiing in the Sandilands Provincial Forest. The town has a public park and mailboxes for residents to enjoy.

Mid-summer in Sunrise Corner – the saskatoon berries and blueberries are plentiful, festivals are getting into full swing, and the weather stays sunny.

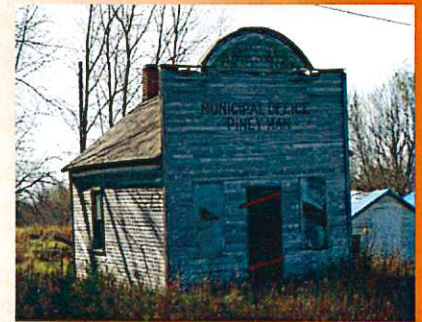

This summer, Sunrise Corner Tourism has profiled Prevost Perennials and Stitched Art in our Local Stories documentary series. These unique businesses offer services you won't find anywhere else in Manitoba! Also in the works, we are working on a small video series about local legends and historical sites. No, we haven't seen the ghosts of Woodridge, Badger and Carrick, but we've heard a lot about them and would love to hear more! If you have a local legend in the RM of Piney you'd like to share, contact us: info@sunrisecornermb.ca.

Don't forget to swing by Sprague Fest, Carrick Days and the Sprague Show 'n' Shine this August for fun you won't find anywhere else! And while you're at it like @sunrisecornermb on Facebook and Instagram to participate in summer contests and giveaways.
